Naples Botanical Garden 2021 – 22 Season Exhibits & Events Preview

NAPLES, FL – July 21, 2021 – Naples Botanical Garden anticipates resuming a full slate of events and exhibitions for 2021 – 22. The on-site creation of a sculpture exclusive to the 170-acre property anchors the season, along with thought-provoking art displays and demonstrations, plus the return of community favorites such as Music in the Garden and the Naples Flower Show & Garden Market.

Environmental artist Patrick Dougherty's STICKWORK headlines the season. Dougherty and his son, Sam, weave tree saplings into intricate and whimsical wonders that cast a dreamlike quality over their locations. They create each piece specifically for its site, resulting in a portfolio of sculptures as unique as the 300-plus international sites on which they were built. The father-son team will arrive in November to compose this new installation with the help of handpicked volunteers. Their creation will remain in the Kapnick Caribbean Garden for approximately two years.

Dougherty's sculptural process inspired the season's theme, Intertwined.

Programming, exhibitions, horticultural displays, tours, and publications will examine mutual relationships that exist in nature, the essential bond between people and their environment, and the vitality that results from honoring those ties.

The Garden continues to monitor public health advisories and follows Centers for Disease Control and Prevention guidance to reduce the spread of COVID-19. For the latest information, visit naplesgarden.org.

Exhibitions:

The Art of STICKWORK: October 1, 2021 – January 9, 2022. This exhibition features 17 photographs and two original sketches of environmental artist Patrick Dougherty's one-of-a-kind interactive sculptures, woven from tree saplings. Enhanced with multimedia displays and interpretive materials, The Art of STICKWORK provides insight into the mind of the artist, his process, preferred materials, and the way in which he honors nature and invites curiosity. Enjoy it before Dougherty's arrival for a glimpse of what's to come, or view it in tandem with his latest installation on the Kapnick Caribbean Garden lawn.

STICKWORK: November 2021 – 2023. Over the course of three weeks, North Carolina-based environmental artist Patrick Dougherty, his son, Sam, and handpicked local volunteers will transform 75,000 pounds of willow saplings into an immersive structure on the Kapnick Caribbean Garden lawn. Only once the sculpture is complete will Dougherty name it, choosing a title that reflects its shape, location, or the feeling it evokes. The work will remain on site for approximately two years.

Woven: Fiber Arts Now: April 8 – June 26, 2022. Five local fiber artists come together in this original exhibition to showcase and celebrate fiber art, all using nature and the Garden as a source of inspiration. Visitors will be invited to participate in a community weaving project set to take place opening weekend.
